

Inviting Death for Coffee

Sipping Truth About the End of Life

What if talking about death could bring more life to your days?

Join us for a gentle, meaningful conversation over coffee or tea—where we explore the topic of death in a relaxed, welcoming space. Together, we'll talk about what it means to have a "good death," share our stories, ask questions, and reflect on what really matters at the end of life.

This is not a class or lecture. There are no right answers. Just real talk, warm connection, and the comfort of being with others who are curious too.

Come as you are. Bring your stories, your wonderings, and your favorite mug.
